THE CAMPUS AND FACILITIES

The McMurry University campus is a beautiful and well-maintained site with the centerpiece being Old Main. There are 23 buildings on the 52-acre campus, including three residence halls and two student apartment complexes.

Among the facilities are:

Old Main (the original administration building)

Construction of the Administration Building (later named Old Main) began in April 1922, and was completed by opening day on September 19, 1923. The science laboratories and fine arts department shared the third floor. The library was located on the west end of the second floor, and the classrooms were on the first and second floors. The college administration offices and auditorium completed the first floor. Over the years, the beautiful auditorium that hosted the opening day ceremonies in 1923 sank into a state of disrepair until a massive building campaign in 2014 when Old Main and the historic auditorium was restored to its former grandeur. Today the building includes classrooms, offices, the Gypsy Ted II Gallery and the Matthews Auditorium, in recognition of the financial commitment of the Matthews Family to the restoration project.

Radford Auditorium

Located on the northeast corner of the campus, the iconic Radford Auditorium enhances the dignity and beauty of McMurry University. The building is a gift from Mrs. J.M. Radford, philanthropist and prominent McMurry benefactress. Standing as a beacon to Christian higher education, the tower of this building, which rises to a height of over 100 feet, may be seen from a distance of over twenty miles. Modern Gothic in architectural style, the heart of this building is its spacious auditorium and sanctuary, which seats 1200 people. Admissions offices are located in Radford.

Furr Welcome Center

The Furr Welcome Center, which opened in September 2007, serves as a welcome center for future McMurry students and guests. It houses personnel from Admissions and provides a meeting and gathering place for McMurry Alumni and friends as well as for outside groups. Its addition to the Radford Auditorium improves the accessibility and usability of the auditorium. Abilene architect Rick Weatherl designed the building to complement Radford with the Welcome Center closely resembling the original sketches of the Radford Building that included two wings for additional space.

Library Facilities

The Jay-Rollins Library and its Learning Commons serve the University's students, faculty, and staff and the Abilene Community as a member of the Abilene Library Consortium. The library contains over 156,550 volumes and a growing collection of digital and print resources, including databases, online books, journals, and media. The Learning Commons encompasses a student computing area, a Periodicals reading area, and the Student Success Center (Supporting STEM student Success). Two classrooms, the Wylie Seminar Room (WSR) and Library 201, are located on the 2nd floor.

Campus Center

The Garrison United Methodist Campus Center has undergone a massive $26 million renovation including the addition of the second floor. The reimagined campus center offers the campus community a gathering space for socialization, meeting and resources. The new structure will be used for dining, special events, group study, wellness, worship services, Esports competition, student government, and campus activities. It will also house the War Hawk Success Center and the career development, student affairs, and religious and spiritual life offices.
